

It is important that a skilled and professional HVAC contractor install kanmor controls as the performance of our products depends on the correct integration with your mechanical equipment.

The contractor purchases our products through their local distributor; they install them in your building; service them; and provide warranty support.

Looking for a contractor? kanmor representatives work in partnership with local wholesale distributors to support quality contractors.

Radiant Control is the representative for kanmor products in the United Kingdom. For product purchase and system related enquiries, Radiant Control can provide information and support that is specific to your location.
